41.04.01 "Foreign Regional Studies"

Profile - European Studies

Qualification: Master of Regional Studies

Program Duration - 2 years

Administering sub-department: World Civilizations and International Relations

Regional studies (foreign regional studies) is a relatively new area of training in the system of Russian higher education. This is due to the need for a comprehensive study of a particular region, a single country or a group of countries. The prestige of regional studies is explained by the need for specialists who will be able to analyze and forecast the development of events taking into account all aspects: economic, political, cultural, religious, sociological, demographic etc.

For those who already have a Diploma of higher education (specialist, bachelor), the Institute of World Civilizations offers a master's program in the field of "Foreign Regional Studies".

Master of Regional Studies is a direction rarely encountered in our country. Not all institutes are ready to carry out such training, limiting themselves to a bachelor's degree. Meanwhile, obtaining a master's degree opens the possibility of enrolling in graduate school. In addition, the Master is a specialist capable of a deeper analysis, prepared for analytical work, consulting and research.

Master of Regional Studies is an opportunity to supplement your higher education, which increases the chances of becoming an employee of a successful Russian or foreign company.
